Sardis and Stamm Book Signing Event and Dunes Tour

On January 11th, just under 100 visitors gathered at the Big Break Visitor Center at the Delta for a tour of the Antioch Dunes National Wildlife Refuge and for the unveiling and signing of our new children's book, Sardis and Stamm. The author, Matthew Bettelheim, the illustrator, Nicole Wong, and the model for the main character in the book, Rebeca Aguilar, were all present for signing books. Sardis and Stamm is a story about the endangered Lange's metalmark butterfly and a young girl who discovers a hidden world of wildflowers and insects at the Antioch Dunes National Wildlife Refuge. Antioch Dunes is a sensitive sand dune habitat located near the city of Antioch on the south shore of the San Joaquin River. It serves as a refuge for three endangered species, the metalmark butterfly, the Antioch Dunes evening primrose and the Contra Costa wallflower. We would like to sincerely thank the staff at Big Break Visitor Center for hosting this event and for their hospitality.

San Pablo Bay National Wildlife Refuge Continues to Grow and Improve

Over the years, many improvements have been made to the refuge for the benefit of the habitat and the public. Below is an account of some of the latest improvements.

- 1) A new access road to the refuge office has been constructed which provides school buses a safe passage to the facility. One group of students who were participating in a restoration project has already been bused to the refuge office.
- 2) Through the efforts of the Sonoma Land Trust, the 1080-acre Haire Ranch was acquired into the refuge. This is a tremendous addition to the Skaggs Island property that is already part of the refuge.
- 3) A major restoration project is under way at the Antioch Dunes refuge. Approximately 43,000 cubic yards of dredged sand has been distributed over the Stamm unit of the refuge. Eventually, a complete habitat restoration will be accomplished at the refuge with the planting of the host buckwheat plant of the metalmark butterfly.
